4d Method for Assessing Evaluation Research into Management and Organisation Interventions, (This is the introduction to Øvretveit, J (2002) Action evaluation of health programmes and change: a handbook for a user focused approach. It is designed to aid managers in evaluating the relevance of a research evaluation to their situation. The method asks four sets of questions about 1) the way the report describes the intervention, 2) the quality of the data, 3) whether the design excludes other possible explanations for the findings, and 4) the relevance of the findings to your work or organisation. <http://www.nelh.nhs.uk/management/4dmethod.doc>
